CARS LEAVE THE TRACK

Southern Railway Train Meets With Accident South of Charlottesville

Early last night reports were circulated in this city to the effect that north bound passenger train No. 36 of the Southern Railway had been wrecked near Charlottesville, and that the engineer and fireman and sixteen passengers had been killed. Great anxiety prevailed for a time among relatives of the train crew and of the passengers. It was said that the accident was caused by a landslide. Later it was ascertained that no one on the train had been killed, but that two persons who were near the track when some of the cars were derailed had lost their lives.

For some time it was believed that an accident as fearful as that at Rockfish about twelve years ago had occurred and the facts in the case when ascertained proved a great relief.

Dispatches from Charlottesville which were received, stated that fast train No. 36, northbound, from New Orleans to New York, due at Charlottesville at 7:55 last night on the Southern Railway, split a switch and was derailed at Fabers, Nelson county, 22 miles south of Charlottesville, at 7:05 last night. The two locomotives drawing the train and four express cars were overturned, but none of the passenger coaches left the track.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Piper, of Fabers, while walking alongside the track were caught under an overturned express car and instantly killed. Mr. Piper, who was a native of Westview Augusta county, was a farmer and acting postmaster at Fabers.

J. W. Keith, of Alexandria, engineer on the front engine, suffered a severe contusion of the right side of the chest, and two abrasions, one on the right forearm and the other on the right leg.

Edward Trumble, the fireman, also of Alexandria, was burned about his neck and hands, and was otherwise injured.

Engineer C. R. Craddock, of Alexandria, and his fireman, P. R. Bradshaw, also of Alexandria, were only slightly hurt.

The first engine passed over the switch to the main line, while the second entered the siding. Both engines toppled over, as did the baggage car. Two express cars and the day coach left the rails but did not overturn.

The accident is said to have been caused by a block of wood falling from a lumber wagon and lodging in a frog, the obstruction throwing the second engine into a siding, while the first got by.

VOYAGE TO QUANTICO

Steamer St. Johns Carries Many Alexandrians and Washingtonians to Town

The big steamer St. Johns left Washington shortly after nine o'clock this morning crowded with excursionists for Quantico where two hundred and fifty lots for manufacturing and dwelling are to be sold. The sales will be conducted by the Atlantic Coast Realty Company. The boat was crowded with people who had taken the steamer at Washington. Upon its arrival at Alexandria about fifty people of this city went aboard.

The excursion was given under the auspices of the Atlantic Coast Realty Company, which will furnish lunch during the day and use every means for the entertainment of the excursionists. This will doubtless be the largest number of persons ever landed at Quantico. During the months of July and August, when trips are made by the St. Johns to Colonial Beach, the steamer occasionally calls at Quantico to take on excursionists, generally small parties composed of Sunday school teachers and scholars, but at no time had such an assemblage made Quantico the objective point.

Many years ago, when the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad made Quantico its northern terminus instead of Aquia Creek, it was believed there was a future for the Prince William village, and a large hotel was constructed there and other enterprises followed. About ten years ago, however, the R. F. & P. R.R. began running their locomotives through to Washington, and Quantico ceasing to be a point for changing engines, the place fell into decay. During the past few months the eyes of many have again been turned to Quantico, it becoming known that the managers of large manufacturing plants in other cities had acquired land there. Many men have recently been put to work preparing for the erection of buildings, and there has been a decided boom in the place. Hence the excursion given today by the realty company.

The water is deep at Quantico and it is upon the neck of a great rail route between the north and south. There is every reason to believe that there is a bright future for the place.

At The Plains tomorrow night occurs a large ceremonial session and one that promises to be an important event in Shriner history. The "Shriner's Special" will return to this city early Sunday morning, leaving The Plains exactly at midnight.
